The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 24-30 are rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-23 of U.S. Patent No. 6692779. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because applying a bacterial suspension to form an inoculated product does not differ from inoculating a food product.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-4 and 6-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Hutkins et al (US 5186962)

Hutkins et al teach a food product comprising an edible food item and a dormant, hydrated nontoxic lactic acid microorganism such as Pediococcus, wherein the nontoxic microorganism release by-products into the food product to inhibit the growth of harmful microorganism as is claimed (see entire patent, especially claims 1, 8, and 11). Hutkins et al also teach the food product to include meat and vegetable products and about 10^3 - 10^9 CFU cells bacteria per gram of food (column 11, lines 40-67).

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hutkins et al (US 5186962) in view of Gaier (US 5645877).

Hutkins et al is cited as above.

The claims differ as to the specific use of Streptococcus thermophilus.

Gaier teaches Streptococcus thermophilus as a lactic acid bacteria (see entire document, especially column 3, lines 39-50).

It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to use Streptococcus thermophilus as taught by Gaier in that of Hutkins because Streptococcus thermophilus is a conventional lactic acid bacteria. Applicant is using known components for their known function to obtain no more than expected results.
